Period for Reply

A SHORTENED STATUTORY PERIOD FOR REPLY IS SET TO EXPIRE 3 MONTH(S) FROM THE MAILING DATE OF THIS COMMUNICATION.

- Extensions of time may be available under the provisions of 37 CFR 1.136(a). In no event, however, may a reply be timely filed after SIX (6) MONTHS from the mailing date of this communication.
- If the period for reply specified above is less than thirty (30) days, a reply within the statutory minimum of thirty (30) days will be considered timely.
- If NO period for reply is specified above, the maximum statutory period will apply and will expire SIX (6) MONTHS from the mailing date of this communication.
- Failure to reply within the set or extended period for reply will, by statute, cause the application to become ABANDONED (35 U.S.C. § 133).
- Any reply received by the Office later than three months after the mailing date of this communication, even if timely filed, may reduce any earned patent term adjustment. See 37 CFR 1.704(b).

Status

- 1) ☒ Responsive to communication(s) filed on 01 June 2003.
- 2a) ☐ This action is FINAL. 2b) ☒ This action is non-final.
- 3) ☐ Since this application is in condition for allowance except for formal matters, prosecution as to the merits is closed in accordance with the practice under Ex parte Quayle, 1935 C.D. 11, 453 O.G. 213.

DETAILED ACTION

1. In view of applicant's argument, the examiner has decided to issue a second non-final office action and use a reference with a housing formed of electrical charge dissipative material.

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

2. Claims 1-20 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Shi et al (US patent 6,383,025) in view of Overgaard (US006331927B1), and further in view of PFAFF et al (US publication 202/0068480).

In regard to claims 1, 3-20, Shi's device discloses a cable connector assembly (fig. 1) for mechanically and electrically coupling to a connector having an insulative (11) housing, the housing sized to receive the connector therein, plurality of contacts, the housing comprising a floor portion contacting the connector a retainer positioned on the housing for retaining a ground wire (33) in contact with the housing. However, Shi's device fails to explicitly disclose the housing with electrical charge dissipating dissipative material and connector housing shape as a housing cap or pyramid shape. Overgaard's device discloses the housing with electrical charge dissipating dissipative material and the ground with hook connected to the housing. It would have been obvious to one having ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to have a shield or housing with electrical charge dissipating dissipative material such as the one disclosed in Overtgaard's device for protecting the housing in Shi's device based on its location (see abstract). PFAFF's device discloses a cap connector. It would have been obvious matter of design or design choice to use the housing shape as the cap, since such a modification would have involved a mere change in shape of a component. A change in shape is generally recognized as being within the level of ordinary skill in art. A change in shape is generally recognizing as being within the level of ordinary skill in the art. In re Dailey, 149 USPQ 47 (CCPA 1976).

In regard to claim 2, Shi's and PFAFF's devices disclose the aforementioned limitations, but fails to explicitly disclose the use of the rubber as insulative material. It would have been obvious to one having ordinary skill at the time the invention was made to use the rubber as insulative material since it has been held to be within the general skill of art to select known material on the basis of its suitability for the intended use as a matter to meet system design and requirement. In re Leshin, 125 USPQ 416. It would have been obvious to one having ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to use the rubber as insulative material for protecting electrostatic discharge sensitive component from static electricity.

Conclusion

3. Any inquiry concerning this communication or earlier communications from the examiner should be directed to Jean Duverne whose telephone number is (703) 305 - 0297 . The examiner
